CHILDREN OF 14 ARE HOSTS TO PARENTS

University Elementary School Graduates Didn't Want Regular Exercises.

PREPAID THE 5 COURSES

Two Preside at Table, While the Others Serve the Banquet.

"Won't you please say grace" said Sylvester Whitten, 14 years old and host of the dinner given by the graduating class of the University Elementary school, to one of his teachers. C. F. Loomis complied.

And then the dinner began. There was baked fish with white sauce, asparagus, creamed potatoes, lemon ice, bot rolls and butter, cucumber salad, wafers, strawberry ice, cake, fruit cups, coffee and mints. There were five courses and all were prepared by the members of the class, 14 and 13

This year's graduating class wanted pone of the old-fashioned graduating exercises with the essays on duty and the poems on mother. They decided to please their parents more substantially and to prepare and cook a dinner Saturday night.

When the guests came they were met by Sylvester and Ermatrude Parker, also 14 years old, in the reception room of the home economics department. After all the guests had arrived they were invited to come up-

Painted place-cards told the guests where to sit. Host and hostess took their places at the ends of the table. After grace had been said, in came the eight other members of the class carrying the dishes they had cooked. The children were a little backward about going in the first time, but once in, the trouble came in keeping them from all going in at once.

Carving was not easy at first for the host. He was carving a piece of fish for Dean W. W. Charters of the School of Education, when his knife and the fish's backbone became caught. His mother ventured a suggestion as to how to manage it.

"Mother," said the host, "school is out; please let me do as I want to just this once." He did and Dean Charters got his fish.

After the dinner was over the children helped clean up and no one shirked. Sylvester Whitten prepared the asparagus, Anna Furtney the fruit Ermatrude Parker the angel cake, Olive Winkler the place-cards, Ruskin Hawkins the potatoes and John Calvert the rolls.
